

Celebrating the 40th Anniversary of the McKay Research Laboratory 2019 Penn Orthopaedics Alumni Weekend

George W. Fryhofer, MD, MTR
Robert L. Mauck, PhD

The 2019 Penn Orthopaedics Alumni Weekend last spring coincided with the 40th Anniversary of the McKay Research Laboratory and was a cause for celebration among the entire Penn orthopaedic community, past and present. Alumni journeyed to Philadelphia from all parts of the country to take part in a two-day program full of collegiality, celebration, and scientific discussion.

Attendees included 190 alumni, friends and staff. There were 14 separate speakers, 4 moderators, and 3 keynote speakers

(Dr. Joe Iannotti, Dr. Andres Garcia, Dr. Ezekiel Emanuel). Distinguished Alumni Awards were presented to Clark Hung, PhD and John Esterhai, MD.

Leadership at all levels of Penn Orthopaedics, the University of Pennsylvania Health System, and the Perelman School of Medicine were involved in helping make the weekend a success, including Ralph Muller, Jonathan Epstein, Arthur Rubenstein, Scott Levin, Louis Soslowsky, and Robert Mauck.

Ribbon cutting ceremony to mark the official re-opening of newly renovated McKay Laboratory space on the 3rd Floor of Stemmler Hall. Pictured above (left to right): Nathaniel Dymont, Sherry Liu, Lachlan Smith, Foteini Mourkioti, Kyu Sang Joeng, Eileen Shore, Robert Mauck, Jonathan Epstein, Chris Clark, Scott Levin, Ling Qin, Louis Soslowsky, and Joel Boerckel.

McKay 40th reunion attendees included 190 alumni, friends and staff. Group photo above taken during the afternoon reception in the Jordan Medical Educational Center.

Ezekiel Emanuel, MD PhD giving his keynote presentation during the Saturday evening reception at R2L on May 4, 2019.